“Now you are as good as new!” says Dr. Knight.

This is Dr. Knight. She works at the zoo.

Dr. Knight takes out her scissors. Clip, clip, snip. Off go the knots!
Dr. Knight is a scientist. She knows a lot about animals.

She has a knitted knapsack. It is filled with books about animals and science.

Dr. Knight shoos the gnats away. She shampoos the gnu. She brushes the gnu.

"It is time for a haircut," says Dr. Knight.
Dr. Knight looks in her knapsack. She pulls out some gnu shampoo. She also pulls out some scissors.

She knows about animals with knobby knees.

She knows about animals who gnaw on bones.

“Oh, my!” says Dr. Knight. “What can I do?”
Dr. Knight walks past the seals, the penguins, and a walrus.

Dr. Knight's favorite animal is the gnu. He lives in a field at the end of the zoo.

There is the gnu. He is resting under a gnarled tree. His long hair is all in knots, and gnats are buzzing around him.

She knows about animals who tie themselves in knots.

There is the gnu. He is resting under a gnarled tree. His long hair is all in knots, and gnats are buzzing around him.

She knows about animals who tie themselves in knots.

Dr. Knight walks past the seals, the penguins, and a walrus.

Dr. Knight's favorite animal is the gnu. He lives in a field at the end of the zoo.