I took a walk today at dawn.

Now you can see what I saw at dawn.

I drew the fawn, the turtle, and the fox.
I saw a sleepy cat stretch and yawn in the autumn leaves.

I drew the sunrise and the frost on the lawn. I drew the cat that stretched and yawned.

I drew the scarecrow and the hawk.

I saw a sunrise, and I saw frost on the lawn.
A scarecrow made of straw guarded the corn. His hat was caught by the wind and blew away.

I wanted to share the things I saw. And so I sat down to draw. I drew the things I saw at dawn.

Its paws were white and its whiskers were long.

He ran and played on the frosty lawn.
I saw a fox crawl out of his den.

A hawk flew by and a fawn came along.

The fawn was the color of the autumn dawn.

The fawn met a turtle on the lawn.
